What kind of example are we setting for our children?

Allenton, Michigan- We have an increasing problem in our society. When a person gets into trouble it always seems to be someone else's fault. Even adults and politicians are having difficulty taking responsibility for their own actions. If you pay attention, not a day goes by that you will not see examples of this in the news, or in your daily life. If adults can't take responsibility for their own actions how do we expect children too? It is difficult to teach a child how important the choices they make affect their lives. Dana Lehman, author of I DOUBLE Dare You! believes books are a successful way to approach this issue with children. Another issue that is just as challenging, if not, more is peer pressure. These topics are both discussed in her second book titled I DOUBLE Dare You!

Silly and Sassy come to Walnut Grove to visit their cousin Sammy. Silly and Sassy are always getting into trouble. They play hide 'n seek, have frog races, and play dare or double dare. How does this lead to jumping off a bridge? Read I DOUBLE Dare You! to find out how everyone learns to take responsibility for his or her own actions. They will also discover that it's not always wise to follow your friends.

The first book in this series titled Adventures at Walnut Grove: A Lesson about Teasing is a story about Sammy, a squirrel, who is teased because he has eyes like a raccoon. Sammy knows that name-calling is not nice, but his friends have a valuable lesson to learn. The name-caller soon becomes the one being teased. Adventures at Walnut Grove: A Lesson about Teasing is a story about friends that learn to treat others the way they would like to be treated.

Dana Lehman currently resides in Allenton, Michigan with her husband, and their two children. Dana graduated from Macomb Community College with an Associates Degree. She has been a stay-at-home mom for seven years. Dana's children are the inspiration for her stories.

Dana is fortunate to have her mother-in-law, Judy Lehman, illustrate both of her books using watercolors. Judy currently lives in Hubbard Lake, Michigan, with her husband George. She has been an artist for thirty-six years. Judy is a childhood cancer survivor. She is donating her royalties to St. Jude's Children's Hospital.

Their goal at Lehman Publishing is to produce quality children's books that teach valuable life lessons in a fun and imaginative way.
